SAMPLE QUESTIONS
Answer the questions according to the passage.
Europe and Japan do not make use of fuel economy standards to any significant degree, but instead rely principally on high taxes to reduce gas consumption. Their tax is about more than $2 per gallon, while in the US, federal gas taxes are only 18 € per gallon and average state taxes are 22 € per gallon. Higher prices at the pump resulting from higher taxes increase consumer demand for cars with better fuel economy. They also encourage consumers to reduce their driving. Research shows that federal taxes on gasoline would have to increase by a bit less than 50 Euros per gallon to cut gasoline consumption in the US. Although a 50 Euro increase is a lot compared with the present average total tax of 40 Euros, it would raise retail gas prices to only a little more than $2 per gallon, tax included. This is far below prices in European countries and Japan. Even if federal taxes on gas were doubled, US retail gas prices would still be much below those in other developed countries.
47. According to the text, efforts have been made _____.
a) to compare the levels of fuel consumption as well as fuel prices in Europe b) to assess what price increases would lead to an important reduction in fuel consumption in the US c) to give more appeal to public transport d) to establish what vehicle types consume less fuel e) to develop fuel-efficient vehicles for sale in the US
48. It is obvious in the text that Japan's strategy to keep fuel consumption down _____.
a) has been greatly criticized by the public b) has not been as effective as was originally envisaged c) depends largely on the high taxation of fuel d) has set an example that Europe is now adapting e) has had no effect upon the country's car production technologies

49. According to the text, the combined federal and state taxes on gas in the US _____ .
a) have exceeded those currently in use in Europe b) are so high that they have forced Japanese car manufactures to change production strategies c) have become a major public concern d) have suddenly caused fuel prices to rise sharply e) amount to much less than the tax paid in Japan
50. We learn from the text that one effect of higher taxes on fuel _____ .
a) is that Europe's production of fuel-economy vehicles has increased remarkably b) is an increased demand for vehicles that consume less fuel c) has been to draw attention to a much wider range of energy resources d) has been a noticeable drop in car sales everywhere e) has been a great deal of uneasiness and even anger among customers
